Note From The Director:

Happy February - 2009 is going by so quickly! With Valentine's Day around the corner I thought it would be great to express our love for our children through hugs.

Did you hug your child today? This simple concept is an important gesture, and the physical embrace is a way of connecting with your child. Children who feel loved and cared for have high self-esteem and do well in their endeavors. Young children have a need to be loved and cuddled especially by the adults they live with. And guess what - it will do you just as much good as your child. Remember, there's always time to fit in a big hug!

God bless,

Tami Warren
